Dr. Dean W. Stoakes, Ph.D.
Superintendent

With District 87's student enrollment reaching the 5,500 mark, effective leadership has become especially important to insure that each of these students obtains the best possible high school education.

From the district offices at Glenbard West, the administrators carry out the business affairs, the research and the planning of student curriculum necessary for both Glenbard high schools.

More work was added this year due to the building of the third District 87 school, Glenbard North. Teachers had to be hired and classes designed for the 1,200 students who will attend North starting in the fall of 1968. All of these affairs were directed by Dr. Dean W. Stoakes, superintendent of District 87. Dr. Stoakes has supervised District 87 for the past six years.

At Glenbard East, Mr. William E. Rider is in charge of directing school affairs. He supervises a teaching staff of over 170 and a student body of 3,400, and is assisted in this responsibility by Dr. James T. Rudolph, assistant principal.

At East this year were also the offices of the new North school. Mr. Ray Livingston and Mr. Bert Weber, newly appointed principal and assistant principal, directed plans for North from this office.

Guidance department grows with school

Administering to the needs and progress of the Glenbard East student body are the ideals of the guidance department. To accommodate the increasing student enrollment three new counselors were added to the staff this year.

Some of the special services the guidance department provides are career, college, and student schedule planning. The counselor's office offers a variety of college board and scholarship tests. The department also plans College Night, open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The program gives students the opportunity to meet and talk with college representatives from schools throughout the United States. The guidance department also organized a preliminary College Night for the first time, a panel of colleges, and other general information with sophomores and juniors.

Students, with the help of their counselors, tentatively plan their academic program before entering freshman year. The co-ordination of schedule planning with the counselors and students continue throughout the pupil's high school education.

Special services made available to all

Since Glenbard East has increased its enrollment to over three thousand, the school calls for more help in the area of special services.

Mr. St. John and Mrs. Lill work in the area of the E.M.H. program. This program is designed to help handicapped students adjust to normal life and become profitable citizens.

Health problems or injuries are attended to by the school nurses, Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Lundeen. Mrs. Dower replaced Mrs. Rogers at the semester when Mrs. Rogers retired. Nurses also keep complete records on the medical history of each Glenbard student with personal and educational programs. The school social worker, Mr. Hostetter, helps and consults with troubled students who need outside help for family and environmental problems.

The school psychologists, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Swanson, provided guidance and directions for any student who was in need of their services.

The Audio-Visual center, headed by Mr. Hanson, aids teachers by supplying them with helpful signs and any other audio-visual equipment necessary to teach the students effectively.

Library keeps pace with enrollment growth

In the eight years of its existence, the Glenbard East library has expanded to include over 16,000 volumes. The library subscribes to over 126 magazines and also includes twenty-eight periodicals in microfilm. Sound filmstrips, silent filmstrips, and art prints are another feature of G.E.'s library. Subject matter of books range from thrilling novels to scientific data. Many students make use of the library facilities for both academic subjects as well as personal enjoyment.

The required semester of Speech included in the sophomore curriculum helps students to develop speaking skills and gain self confidence. Students participate in such activities as debates, demonstrations, and panel. In addition to speech, the speech arts department offers courses in such fields as debate, stagecraft, dramatics and public speaking. This department also produces the school plays and presents many other productions.

English department offers great variety

Students are offered a well-rounded education in grammar, literature, and the art of writing by G.E.'s English department. These three years comprise much of the background information needed for college English courses.

English I, II, III, and speech are the usual courses taken by all students. More advanced pupils are enrolled in the honor courses which go into more depth. The English department also offers basic classes, which are smaller, and more individual instruction is given.

As a senior, a student may select an advanced course of study. Many courses are available including creative writing, English composition, world literature and English literature. With this variety to choose from, students can select subjects of their own interest to study.

Glenbard East's Mathematics Department offers two different programs to students: a program for terminal students and one for college-bound students.

The general math program is provided for those who do not plan to attend college. It provides the student with the fundamentals of mathematics necessary for use in later life. However, being a terminal student does not limit a student to this program.

The college-bound student is offered a more intensive, college oriented program. Courses in algebra, plane and solid geometry, and trigonometry prepare the student for mathematics courses in college. This program emphasizes logic and theoretical math.

An accelerated program is offered to honor students. College Algebra, calculus, and math III and IV honors are included in this program.

Glenbard East's math department includes all students by offering programs to career-bound and college-bound students.

G.E. offers wide scope in science

Accomplishments are made every day in the field of science as new or more advanced methods are applied to former knowledge. This new knowledge along with the basics from the acquired scientific knowledge of the past is presented to the student body through the science department.

For the students who are interested in science, Glenbard East provides a wide scope of courses. Their first three years these college bound students are offered BSCS Biology, Chemistry, and PSSC Physics. Their last year they may then choose between Advanced Biology or Advanced Chemistry.

Also included in the science program are Physical Science and the traditional chemistry courses which differs from Chem Study in that it emphasizes facts rather than allowing the student to deduce them through experimentation as in the Chem Study course. The science department also sponsors the annual Science Fair. It was held in March this year, with over one hundred twenty projects entered. The projects dealt with all phases of science and technology. First place winners from this fair were invited to participate in the district fair at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Mr. Zigman gives one of his realistic lectures on the American West in his U.S. History Honors class.

Social Sciences give cultural insights

Each level of the social sciences offers students the understanding of the political and cultural history of all the different countries of the world. Through the many courses taught each year students not only meet high school and college requirements but learn to become an effective part of society.

Freshman students are offered World History which traces the growth and spread of the cultures of the world and world geography which shows the relationship between climate and resources in determining a peoples' culture. The freshman social science honors class is an enriched world history course. As a sophomore the honors program, the student takes Social Science II, which introduces him to economics, anthropology and political science.

Juniors must choose between U. S. History or honors U. S. History if they are especially interested in the social sciences. These two courses deal with the economic, political and social expansion of the United States.

There are many courses offered to students in their senior year. These include Economics, World History, Sociology, Russian History, American Problems and Cultural History.

Language study becomes indispensible

Some of the intense political situations of our modern world demands a better means of communication to contact peoples of other languages and cultures. To create a better means of communication, language study is indispensable.

Glenbard's Foreign Language Department offers French, Spanish, Latin, German, and Russian to students interested in a language. Four years of each of these languages, except Russian, are taught in order to give Glenbard students a comprehensive study of their chosen language.

While the planned texts with their corresponding electronic language labs, provide students with the necessary skills for fluency, field trips, movies, and research material provide the student with an insight into the history, culture, and contemporary problems of other countries.

For the past few years, the language program offered to new students has been one of the A.L.M. Language labs, complete with head sets, tapes, records, and films are devices used to assist A.L.M. students, along with the text and exercise books. The third and fourth year students involved with the A.L.M. program continue with extensive reading and grammar.

Business Ed. department trains for work and college futures

All Glenbard students are given a wide choice of electives on the Business Education Department. The large variety of courses offered, instruct the students in secretarial and clerical skills or basic business concepts. The college-bound high school student also finds business education courses which are designed to satisfy his needs.

For those students interested in the secretarial fields of business, shorthand, typing, office machines, and general office practice are available. With these courses, a student is given an excellent opportunity to go into the business world directly after high school graduation.

The Business Education Department also offers courses to Glenbard students which cover general business concepts. Bookkeeping, business law, consumer economics are included among these.

For the college-bound student, the Business Department recommends two courses. Personal typing and notehand are designed to meet the needs of college students.

Girls at Glenbard East are offered a wide and liberal education in homemaking and culinary arts in the Home Economics Department. In the clothing courses students are taught the basic skills of selection and use of sewing tools, patterns, and fabrics. The processes of clothing are demonstrated and then put into practical application in the making of simple garments such as blouses, skirts, suits, and dresses. Students may also study home management, which deals with the planning and smooth running of a home. The foods and nutrition courses emphasize meal planning, table services, and consumer buying as well as basic cookery skills and nutrition.

Industrial Arts Department enables fellows to learn a variety of skills dealing in woods, metals, mechanical drawing, and electricity. Included are such classes as: automotive mechanics, electronics, and mechanical drawing. In the freshman year, students learn industrial essentials which expose them to the various areas available to them in the advanced courses offered by the department, such as metalworking, woodworking, and architecture.

To students interested in developing and expressing their artistic and musical talents, GE offers many varied and interesting opportunities in the art and music department.

Glenbard East's music department now offers the students three levels of choir. Freshmen are able to join Chorus I. Chorus II is open to sophomores. A new addition to the choral department is the concert choir, the most advanced level of choir. Two levels of orchestra and three levels of band are offered to student musicians. Cadet band and orchestra are for students who have little or no experience in playing an instrument. Intermediate band is designed for GE pupils who have a limited knowledge of a musical instrument. The concert band and orchestra is composed of students who have exhibited a sufficient capacity to perform difficult pieces.

The art department offers both general and specific art courses. Art I and Art II give students an introduction to the fundamental phases of art. Sketching, ceramics, sculpture, design, crafts, painting, advertising arts, drawing, and printmaking provide many areas of specialization to students. Art Seminar and the History of Art are planned to help the college-bound who has never taken any art courses.

Trained drivers are given insurance advantages

Chances to participate in actual traffic situations are given each G.E. student who takes drivers' education. Participants gain knowledge of traffic laws and are given the opportunity to apply this knowledge in behind-the-wheel experience.

The American Automobile Association provides films and diagrams which make this course more worthwhile. Other teaching devices stress safe driving and also show particular driving situations.

Driver Ed. cars are provided by nearby automobile agencies These fully equipped vehicles help the beginning driver learn the correct techniques of safe driving.

There are two phases of Driver's Education: classroom and behind-the-wheel. A student must successfully complete the classroom course, as the course provides the student with the fundamentals necessary for safe driving, before being permitted to enroll in behind-the-wheel training. Not only are students given the opportunity to gain experience but also insurance rates are reduced after successful completion of this program since insurance companies have found that students who have participated successfully in such programs are safe drivers.

Girls' P.E. emphasizes team and individual sports

Four years of Physical Education are required of all girls in attendance at Glenbard. During these years, good sportsmanship and the ability to work in a team as well as in individual activities are developed by Glenbard's Girls Physical Education Department.

Team sports such as basketball, volleyball and field hockey are included in the physical education curriculum to promote better teamwork. Gymnastics is offered in order to allow girls to achieve in individual events. Golf, tennis, and badminton classes give the girls at Glenbard a sound foundation in some of our most popular social sports. For the first time at Glenbard, fencing instructions were also offered.

Our girl's physical education department also offers different types of dancing for the development of poise, agility and creativity. As freshmen, girls receive instruction in American square dancing. During the sophomore year, folk dancing is taught. As a junior and a senior, a girl is taught to express herself through modern dance.

Coach Joe Milek checks attendance records for his first hour class.

To develop endurance and coordination, as well as to strengthen the mind are objectives of the Boys Physical Education program at Glenbard East. Boys receive special attention for their weak points and the coaches endeavor to strengthen individual ability in all sports.

The year was started with a three week physical fitness program, which consisted of a two weeks spent on testing each student in sit-ups, pull-ups, half mile, fifty yard dash, and the obstacle course. This was followed by an appreciation course. During this time students watched movies of such things as golf, football, fishing, and gymnastics.

The remainder of the year was divided into three week periods, and each class changed areas of activity every three weeks. The non-competitive activities were weight training, gymnastics, and golf.

The competitive field was much broader than the non-competitive field. The school has facilities for such team sports as flag football, basketball, volleyball, and wrestling.

Each school day the Glenbard East office staff helps to handle the office management of the school. Their many jobs vary from duplicating materials for the teachers to operating the bookstore.

The friendly faces of the office help can be found in the main office and the attendance office as well as the guidance office and physical education offices. In each office these helpers greet students and faculty and are always eager to solve any of their problems.

The office staff is larger this year as new members now work in the psychologist's office and the offices of the Glenbard North administration.

The staff, working in the guidance office, helps counselors to assemble schedules, keep records, work with IBM cards, handle transcripts as well as other routine jobs. In the main office the staff is in charge of sorting mail, answering the switchboard, and handling purchase orders. The attendance office is busy with keeping track of the absences at Glenbard East as well as issuing admittance slips. Supervising study halls are Mrs. Hoyt and Mrs. Bass, who hold a non-certified position.

Deo Miller, executive editor of Aries, makes a last minute repair on a typewriter in the Aries office.

Aries, the Zodiac sign of the ram, is a fitting title for the Glenbard East yearbook. Aries is not a senior yearbook, nor a freshman one. This year's staff has endeavored to completely and accurately paint a portrait of school life.

To many people, a yearbook is just taken for granted; but, to the staff, it is much more. To executive editor, Deo Miller, and the rest of the staff, it meant deadlines, identifying pictures, layouts, pictures, co-ordinating pages, captions, copy, hamburgers, giving up holidays, and sometimes frustration. With all this comes something they wouldn't miss for anything, that is to see a book take form, to see all one's work combined into one yearbook that no one will forget.

Echo changes format to increase interest

Tom Blakemore, sports assistant, and Mr. Spanogle, Echo adviser, discuss future copy for the Echo.

Glenbard East's student newspaper, Echo has initiated many changes this year. The paper is being printed by a new firm, Glen Ellyn News, on a different type of press. The paper as well as the print has been changed this year. In addition, Echo has expanded to eight pages and is distributed every two weeks. There are a total of thirteen issues during the school year.

The Echo staff is headed by editor, Greg Reeves, with Mr. Spanogle as the adviser. The staff of about thirty members is composed of students interested in the school newspaper as well as the students taking journalism. Reporters not only cover school events, but also community events of interest to the student body. Echo policy is to print any reasonable student letter to the editor.

Echo news assistant, Marva Mech, counts the number of copies to go to sections for Echo distribution.

Discussion between Geoff Wood, sports editor, and Tom Blakemore, sports assistant, centers around G.E. sports activities to be reported on in the next Echo.

Ramblings publishes student literary work

Ramblings is Glenbard East's literary magazine. Published annually and sold in the spring, it contains poems, short stories, etchings, and sayings written or drawn by our own students.

During the first week of January, the Ramblings staff held a publicity campaign to create interest among the student body. They had contests and after-school activities to promote the magazine. To finish the week, they held a social to raise funds to print Ramblings. The staff also planned their annual folk festival.

The executive staff this past year was headed by Alison Hall, who was also a member of Quill and Scroll. The rest of the editorial staff were Melanie Fallon, literary editor; Kathy Hutcheson, business manager; and Harold Lindblad, art editor. Mrs. Woodcock served as the new adviser of Ramblings this year.

Quill and Scroll recognizes G.E.'s journalists

Aries, Echo and Ramblings are represented in Glenbard East's chapter of Quill and Scroll. This is an honorary fraternity for high school journalists. Requirements for membership are ranking in the upper third of the junior or senior class, a teacher recommendation, and outstanding work in some field of journalism. With membership to Quill and Scroll, the student receives a pin and the monthly magazine, Quill and Scroll.

Aries personnel in membership were Deo Miller, executive editor; Jan Udesen, business manager; Judy Williamson, senior editor; and Barb Waller, index editor. Alison Hall, executive editor from Ramblings, was initiated also. Echo editors in the organization were Greg Reeves, editor-in-chief; Donna Wallace, managing editor; Pam Rubel, news editor; Pam Messenger, business editor; Laurel Virgin, feature editor; Tom Blakemore, Tom Gambino, and Geoff Wood, sports editors.

Student Council changes to bicameral system

Student Council, this year, was unique and different from any other student government in the history of Glenbard. By a revised constitution passed in the spring of 1967, a bicameral legislature was formed with a representative from each homeroom in the lower house and four class representatives plus the executive board in the upper house. The complete Student Council met once every two weeks to discuss and vote on activities pertaining to the entire student body.

Student Council's first activity was selling school calendars. Throughout the year, football jerseys and sunballs were also sold. Glenbard's student government planned the annual Homecoming. They picked the theme "Mythology" and carried it out through the parade and the semi-formal dance. To raise extra money, a donkey basketball game was held.

The executive board of the Student Council was led by president, Wayne Fisher; vice-president, Linda Scheben; secretary, Gayle Akright; and treasurer, Rich Holsinger. By the 1967 constitution, two new offices were added to the upper house. Ruth Wright served as the first A.F.S. Chairman and Marijane Houlihan was Publicity Chairman.

Student Council vice-president, Linda Scheben, sends a questioning glance to a member of the Authority Committee in regards to a comment made.

School spirit at athletic events was promoted by the energetic and enthusiastic Pep Club. The members of Pep Club supported our team at all games this year rather than only football and basketball.

The girl-ask-boy Kick-Off Dance, sponsored by Pep Club, started off the school year. At Homecoming they sold mums and football buttons. Throughout the year, they planned pep rallies for every game, chartered buses for students to away matches, and sold spirit pins. Through these fund-raising activities, they were able to buy new uniforms for the cheerleaders. The year's activities were culminated with the annual Spring Pep Club Tea. At that time the new council members and cheerleaders were announced and awards given to outstanding members.

The officers of Pep Club were: president, Margy Schmidt; vice-president, Cheryl Olson; secretary, Barb Becker; and Holly Parker, treasurer. The remaining members of the council were made up of the two representatives from each class except freshman, who had one. Miss Bauler served as adviser.

G-Club stimulates pride in G.E. athletics

All athletes who have received a varsity letter are automatically eligible for membership in G-Club. The hundred members of this honorary club are organized to encourage sportsmanship and stimulate pride in Glenbard East's athletic teams. They represent all the different sports at Glenbard and every one of them is a fine example of what a good athlete should be.

At each home game, G-Club members served as ushers. Selling pencils with the basketball schedules printed on them was one of the fund-raising projects sponsored by G-Club. Club members also sold popcorn at all home games. The proceeds from these projects went to pay for the lettermen's blazers.

G-Club was headed by president, Dave Porter. He was assisted by Art Malm as vice-president and Kevin Hanson as secretary-treasurer. The club adviser was Coach Stevenson.

In the spring, the G-Club held a banquet for all athletes who had received varsity letters. All G.E. coaches were also invited.

Excellence sparks National Honor Society

One of the greatest honors that can be bestowed upon a high school student is membership in the National Honor Society. Students in this organization have been carefully chosen by the teachers and administration. They must have made contributions in the fields of character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

The induction ceremony, under the direction of the club sponsor, Mr. Byers, has become one of the many traditions of Glenbard. This year's induction was held after first semester. New and old members assembled on the stage, and four candles were lit, symbolizing the four fields which all members had made contributions to. These four candles were lit by the outgoing officers, who each in turn explained and clarified the symbolism of each candle. Each member then lit his own candle. By doing this they stated the purpose of the National Honor Society. They proclaimed they would bear the light of truth and keep the four values of life alive in our school.

Another function National Honor Society at Glenbard East was to plan and hold the party held at graduation for the students receiving scholarships.

Caduceus sponsors first computer dance

On March 30, 1968, Glenbard's medical club, Caduceus, sponsored the first computer dance held at this school. The use of the computers to match dates was well received by the student body. To spread the Christmas spirit, Caduceus sold Christmas tree ornaments. They participated in the Homecoming activities by entering a float with a Glenbard ram conquering a Hinsdale hornet.

Regular monthly meetings were held by the club, where various speakers and films were presented on medical topics of interest.

All Caduceus activities were co-ordinated by a council of six girls. Linda Nieman presided over the meetings and activities as president of Caduceus. The rest of the council consisted of Sue Wenman, vice-president; Holly Winter, secretary; Karen Wenman, treasurer; Valerie Vitale, publicity chairman; and Karen Hornstra, ways and means chairman. Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Dower served as advisers.

Thespians participate in dramatic productions

Nineteen hundred sixty-eight completed the fifth year of Thespians at Glenbard. During the year, the thirty-nine members assisted in plays and studio productions.

To receive the honor of membership in Thespians, a student must work a total of one hundred hours in parts and crews and must also have a deep interest in bettering dramatic productions. For the initiation of new members into Thespians, two banquets were held at the end of each semester.

The most important feat performed by Troupe 2489 was the sponsoring of the Northern Illinois Conference. This was a meeting of several troupes of Thespians for one day in the spring.

Sponsor for National Thespians Troupe 2489 was Mrs. Margaret G. Meyer. Co-sponsor was Mr. Berglund. The officers for Thespians were Mike Jurgenson, president; Denise Domke, vice-president; and Marcia Rittmueller, secretary.

Theatre guild promotes interest in drama

Theatre Guild is one of Glenbard East's newer clubs. It did not get its start until the middle of the 1966-67 school year. Its membership grew with student interest in the many aspects of the theatre.

This year the club took on a new look by being divided into three committees, Program In, Program Out, and Fund Raising. A field trip to see the avant-garde play, U.S.A., was financed entirely by the club's treasury. Theatre Guild's profits came from the sale of Drama Season tickets and cold drinks at school plays. This year Theatre Guild planned a great deal of impromptus, films, and plays.

The club's officers were Debbie Haight, president; Cathy Sheffler, vice-president; Pat Foley, secretary; Lee Miller, treasurer; and Mike Lanners, Thespian co-ordinator. Mr. Robert Cetera acted as club adviser this year.

Artisans decorate school for Christmas

Artisans, Glenbard's organization for students interested in art culture, spent the 1967 school year exploring the many facets of art. A service club sponsored by Mr. Snyder, Artisans also provided many contributions to several organizations and to the student body at G.E.

The club's first project was the making and selling of class pins. The pins were made out of ceramics and then hand-painted. To celebrate the Yuletide season, Artisans decorated the dean's showcase window and the window over the lower main entrance with a giant Christmas tree made out of flowers in vivid shades of pink. In the spring, Artisans sold prints of pictures to all interested students and faculty. Through-out the year, the art club assisted many other organizations by making posters to advertise any club events.

Peggy Lauer served as president of Artisans with Alison Hall as vice-president.

Debate and Forensics encourage public speaking

Eighteen students participated in Glenbard's Debate and Forensics Club this past year. These members were divided into two groups: the debate team and the forensics team. Practice forums and research for speeches were held during seventh hour and after school every day under the supervision of Mrs. Swango.

The debate team participated in eight dual meets with schools in the northern Illinois area. They also took part in two conference meets.

Debaters are divided into three groups: novice, junior varsity, and varsity. These groups discussed the national debate topic for the 1967-1968 school year. Resolved: that Congress should establish uniform regulations regarding criminal investigation procedures.

A trophy was awarded to Glenbard's varsity forensics team for accumulating the highest amount of points among the schools in the Des Plaines Valley League. By winning these meets, the team won valuable points necessary to join the National Forensics Club.

New Horizons enlarge their interests

Enlarging one's scope through stimulating activities is the aim of Glenbard's New Horizons. A council of seventeen students and the club's adviser, Mr. Paul Hartman, planned excursions which covered many varied fields of entertainment and interest. All Glenbard students were invited to participate in any of the club's activities.

New Horizons' trips were taken monthly. The club went to see a concert by Simon and Garfunkel on the first outing. In December, New Horizons went to Chicago to see Christmas decorations and to do Christmas shopping. The group also went to see the Civil War love story, "Gone With the Wind."

After packing up their warm clothes and ski equipment, the New Horizons members went to Wilmont Mountain after semester exams for ski lessons and for practice on the challenging slopes.

Vicki Mettevelis, New Horizons council member, makes notes for the next New Horizon Club meeting.

Campus Life discusses local and world problems

Campus Life, affiliated with Youth for Christ International, has completed its fourth year at Glenbard East.

All Glenbard East students were invited to regular meetings, held every Tuesday night at members' homes. At these meetings, members discussed world problems and how they could be remedied from a Christian viewpoint. Planning meetings were held weekly with the officers and Mr. Capps, faculty adviser. Monthly parties also open to all G.E. students included a roller skating party which featured a folk group from Wheaton North, Bill Eakin, a teen speaker and the Campus Life electric chair.

The club was directed by Mr. and Mrs. Karas with the help of Wheaton College students, Roger Bennet, LaVonne Rutherford, and Linda Deacon.

Officers for the 1967-1968 year were president, Bob Postlewaite; secretary, Cheryl Anderson; social chairman, Yolanda Valez; follow-up chairman, Jan Benson, and president assistant, Dave Eckin.

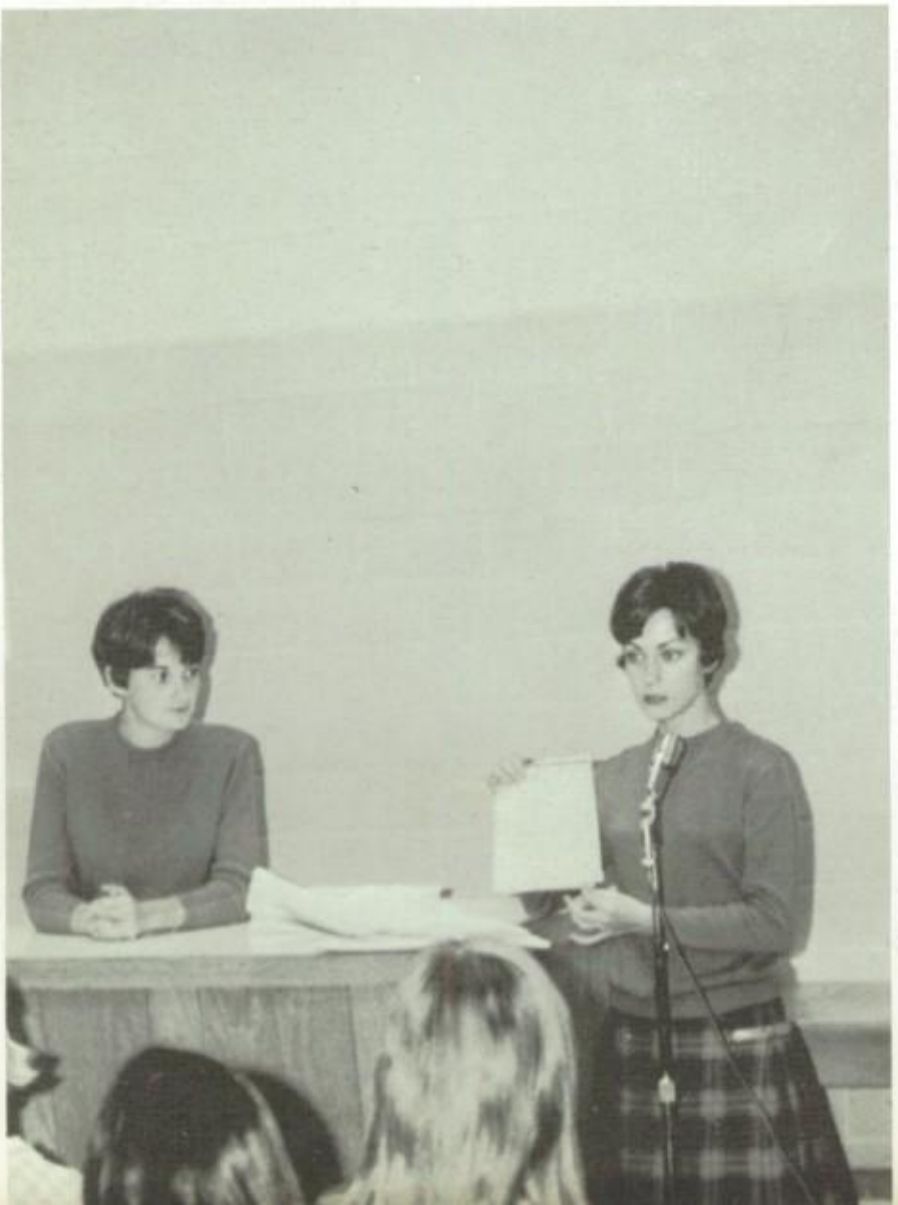
Glen-teens sponsor foster child

Pam May, Glen-Teens president, watches as Linda Mueller, secretary, reads the minutes of the previous meeting.



Glen-Teens aims are to serve the school and community. This year Glen-Teens accomplished a great deal by adding more service projects, revising the constitution and supporting a foster child overseas.

November was a busy month for the club. Activities included money making projects and service projects. Glen-Teens sponsored their annual Sadie Hawkins dance and had a social to earn money for the club. The service project for the month was a clothing drive for the Hopi Indians in Arizona.

One of the highlights of the year for the club was supporting a foster child. Her name was Oi Lai and she lived in Hong Kong.

In May a mother-daughter banquet was held to announce the coming year's council members and officers.

Glen-Teens officers for the past year were Pam May, president; Laurie Polka, vice-president; Linda Mueller, secretary; and Jane Davidson, treasurer.

Service to the community, school and nation is the aim of Glenbard's Tri-S Teens. The girls meet regularly to plan projects for many well-deserving groups.

To raise funds for their projects Tri-S Teens sold red, white and black shakers during the football season. They also held a basketball social to raise extra money. In November they provided a Thanksgiving dinner for a needy family. They also visited a home for elderly people and presented a program of singing, skits and musical arrangements.

Miss Karnoscak was the adviser of Tri-S Teens. Kay Pounders served as president during this school year. The remaining members of the executive board were: vice-president; Sue Fawkes; secretary; Jean Smith, and Treasurer, Laurie Seidel.

All boys are eligible for Hi-Y membership

Hi-Y is an organization which offers a variety of sports and outings to its members. Any boy enrolled at Glenbard East is eligible for membership. The club is affiliated with the high school section of the Y.M.C.A.

On the first Tuesday of each month, the members of Hi-Y had a playnight. They also held a cook-out and sold soft drinks at the basketball games. Our cafeteria's cleanliness was due to the effort put forth by the members of Hi-Y. The members also worked with an orphanage in Naperville.

The officers of Hi-Y this year were Dean Donat, president; Kevin Eberle, vice-president; John Feeley, treasurer; Tom Law, secretary; Tim Coppock, sergeant of arms and Chuck Trotter, chaplain. Mr. Henne and Mr. Bass were co-advisers for the 1967-1968 school year.

VICA purchases club blazers

Vocational Industrial Clubs of America is a national organization devoted to assisting students, with interests in the trade, technical, or industrial fields, in becoming aware of their responsibility and preparing for leadership in the "world of work." At Glenbard East only those students enrolled in the Diversified Occupation program are members of VICA. This is a vocational program designed to train students for skilled occupations by co-ordinating in school instruction with on-the-job training by an employer in the community. Specifically, the occupations available fall into the category of either trade, technical, or industrial type jobs.

Activities of the local club include specially organized field trips to local industries and the yearly "appreciation banquet" held for all the participating employers that provide opportunities for the training of G.E. students. This past year VICA members at Glenbard East purchased the official club blazers to give recognition to those students enrolled in vocational education.

Future Teachers hold Student-Teacher day

Future Teachers of America is one of the many career-minded clubs at Glenbard East. Various programs were designed for students that simulated actual classroom teaching. Student Teacher Day held this spring was an opportunity open to all students who were interested in becoming a teacher on a high school level. On this day, Glenbard students were able to teach classes of their choice. Members of F.T.A. were also eligible to become a cadet teacher for local grammar and junior high schools in Lombard. This program was introduced to Glenbard in 1966.

This year officers, Patti Baker, president; Mike Christianson, vice president; and Kathy Everitt, Cathy Carr, Jan Everitt, Margaret Akehurst were responsible for the past year's activities. A social was sponsored by F.T.A. in January. Mr. Lindsey has been the club's adviser for the past three years.

Auto Tech Club holds first Road Rally

Auto Tech Club is an organization for boys interested in learning more about mechanics than classroom time allows. During the year, members of the club had the opportunity to inspect several different 1968 models, including the Rambler Javelin, Corvette Stingray, and the Ford Mustang GTA. They also took a field trip to the General Motors Assembly Plant in LaGrange.

Last spring, the club held its first Road Rally. Contestants were timed as they traveled between stop-points on a specially designated route. This rally was not a race, but a test of the driver's skill in handling his car safely and efficiently.

Club members also helped students and faculty members get their cars started during the cold weather last winter as an extra function.

Auto Tech Club is under the faculty supervision of Mr. Marlow and Mr. Hood. The officers this year were president, Dave Perso; vice-president, Stuart Standish; and secretary-treasurer, Russ Acton.

French Club widens scope with new projects

Foreign language students at Glenbard East who have an interest in France and the French language are invited to join French Club. Two membership drives were held at the beginning of each semester to expand the club to over sixty members.

In December, French Club held the Christmas social. A Christmas tree was erected in the cafeteria and Santa Claus visited the students who attended. In the spring, the club, in co-ordination with Student Council, sponsored Glenbard's annual Bermuda Day. At the end of the year, the club went to a French restaurant for dinner.

French Club had several new projects this year. One of them was to organize an inter-school French Club with the schools in the Des Plaines Valley League for exchanging ideas. The club also gave a scholarship for one hundred fifty dollars to an outstanding fourth year French student. Along with the Rotary Club of Lombard, French Club sent a member to France for the summer.

Marijane Houlihan served as president; Barb Peterson, vice-president; Gloria Newman, secretary; and Kathy Bryant, treasurer.

German Club corresponds with exchange student

Glenbard East's German Club was organized with the intent to familiarize its members with life and customs of the German people. A trip to Circle Campus and Deutsche Erche for dinner was made by third and fourth year students on February 23. They also celebrated Christmas with German customs and decorations. At this time a movie was shown called "Karyman von Kopenick". The club also sent Christmas presents to Linda Rominger, G.E.'s exchange student to Germany. Students carry on correspondence with Linda and her German family.

To raise money for these projects, German Club has held several fund-raising events. Among these were a social on February 16 and a bake sale in November.

German Club was under the leadership of Kevin Hanson, president; Linda Roath, vice-president; and Kay Dodge, secretary-treasurer. They were assisted by Mrs. Tymoszenko, adviser.

Spanish Club explores culture and tradition

Spanish Club officers: Ruth Wright, pres., and Betty Barnes, vice president.

Organized to explore the many interesting facets of Spanish culture, Glenbard's Spanish Club spent the past school year learning about one of our foreign neighbors. Meetings were held twice a month to plan outings and activities.

To raise money for their activities, Spanish Club had two taffy apple sales. With the money earned, the members went to Chicago to see "Man of La Mancha." They also had dinner at a Spanish restaurant.

During the Christmas holidays, Spanish Club held a party for the members. Spanish food was served while the group made pinatas and sang the traditional posadas. On April Fool's Day, Spanish Club celebrated Llama Day by selling felt llama pins.

Several speakers presented films and talks to the members. Mrs. Swetlik gave a presentation on the country of Peru and Yuri Yamada spoke about her native country, Chile.

Officers for Spanish Club were Ruth Wright, president; Betty Barnes, vice-president; and Jayne Kellan, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Jurgens, Mrs. Swetlik, and Miss Bell were the club's advisers.

Latin Club awards college scholarship

Sentatus Populusque Romanus, Senate and People of Rome, is the name of G.E.'s Latin Club. Many activities were planned for S.P.Q.R. members. These included a slave auction where first year Latin students were sold to be slaves for the day. A party was held after school with all members in costumes. A Christmas party, Roman Saturnalia, was also planned where gifts were exchanged. Other projects included working on a car for Homecoming, having a candy sale, and a banquet at the end of the year at which officers were announced. Awards were given at this time to those with the most points earned by participating in club activities. At the end of the year, a scholarship was given at graduation to a senior who planned to study Latin in college.

The club was under the leadership of Barb Darcy and Yvonne Schroeder, co-presidents; Paul Ingrassia and Linda Darcy, vice-presidents; Jan Patocka and Donna White, treasurers, and Jan Stoekel and Mike Sieg, secretaries, with adviser Mrs. Haligan.

Linda Darcy, Barb Darcy, Dave Robinson, and Yvonne Schroeder, Latin Club Council members, add a Latin touch to the Homecoming parade.

Russian Club organizes and plans projects

The members of Russian Club spent much of their first year organizing and trying to arouse interest in the club's projects.

Russian Club was formed to help Russian students learn more about the history and culture of Russia through various activities of the club. One of their main projects was a trip to view some Russian films. To raise money for their planned trips the club held a mixer early in the year.

Russian Club for the past year was led by Jennifer Sennot, president; Pat Rogers, vice-president; and Diane Coley, secretary. The club was advised by Mr. Hollis Meyer.

Radio Club seeks world-wide communication

World-wide communication through amateur radio is the goal of the local Radio Club. At the club's weekly meetings, the members learn of new innovations in the expanding field of communications. The club has recently introduced a new training technique, which has enabled several of its members to pass the code examination given by the Federal Communications Commission. The test will permit the students to take a theory test which will then allow them to receive a Novice Class Amateur License.

The Radio Club plans to operate Field Day, sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, in June. At this time, portable power sources and radio equipment will be manned as if under emergency conditions. The aim of this "Field Day" is to prove that amateur groups can form a co-ordinated communication link between a disaster area and an area of assistance. Last Field Day, Radio Club made 428 contacts throughout the world.

With the assistance of faculty adviser Mr. Fawkes, the club is directed by officers: Phil Walker, president; Dave Kaplan, vice-president; and Tom Hebda, secretary-treasurer.

Science Club examines technological advances

Examining, questioning and understanding were the key words which have made Glenbard's Science Club a success this year. All students interested in any field of science were invited to attend the club's meetings, held twice a month. At these meetings, lectures were given or films presented which provided members with the opportunity to learn more about modern science and up-to-date technological advances than possible in the classroom course.

Science Club took a keen interest in keeping the display case on the science floor filled with the different exhibits. Included were live animals such as rabbits and mice. The members also took a trip to the Museum of Natural History, the Field Aquarium and the Planetarium. The movie "Educating the Dedicated" was also presented to Glenbard's Science Club.

The Science Club officers for the 1967-68 school year were Bruce Howell, president; Jeri McDowell, vice-president; and Joan Cordopoze, secretary-treasurer. Miss Hanlon, Miss Krueger and Mr. Shiffer were the club's advisers.

Campus Council helps enforce school regulations

In 1963, G.E.'s Student Council organized a separate organization of students who help enforce disciplinary rules. The members are appointed by Mr. Hutt, Dean of Boys. Their primary concern is with establishing, maintaining, and improving the overall atmosphere of Glenbard East.

The duties of these members are checking the cars in the parking lot for parking permits, checking on hall monitors, and checking washrooms for smoking. Offenders are brought before Mr. Hutt.

While setting the best example possible by displaying proper attitudes toward school citizenship and respect, Campus Council has helped develop good student attitude and respect for necessary rules.

G.A.A. offers wide variety of sports

GAA Council is made up of twenty girls chosen by the Girls Physical Education Department on the basis of the number of points the girls have earned from various GAA activities.

Each council member is in charge of a sport and event. For this year the council and their sport activity were: Caroline Rakosnik, archery, Jan Udesen, tennis, Kathy O'Malley, volleyball, Peggy Taylor, modern dance, Linda Heller, bowling, Loretta Larson, gymnastics, Sherryl Broughton, recreation, Sheila Stanich, sports and points, Ruth Layman, golf, Ellen Gouldsberry, softball, Mary Sorenson, stunts and tumbling, Lisa Interlandi, badminton, and Carol Menich, basketball.

To raise money this year GAA Council held a sock hop featuring the Midnight Blues on the first of November. The council also planned a Carnival in March to earn money for other club projects.

The Father-Daughter Banquet was held in May and the new officers for the coming year were announced.

This year's council officers were: Pam Zeedyk, president, Bonnie Bludorn, vice-president, Barb Smith, secretary; LaVonne Warren, treasurer.

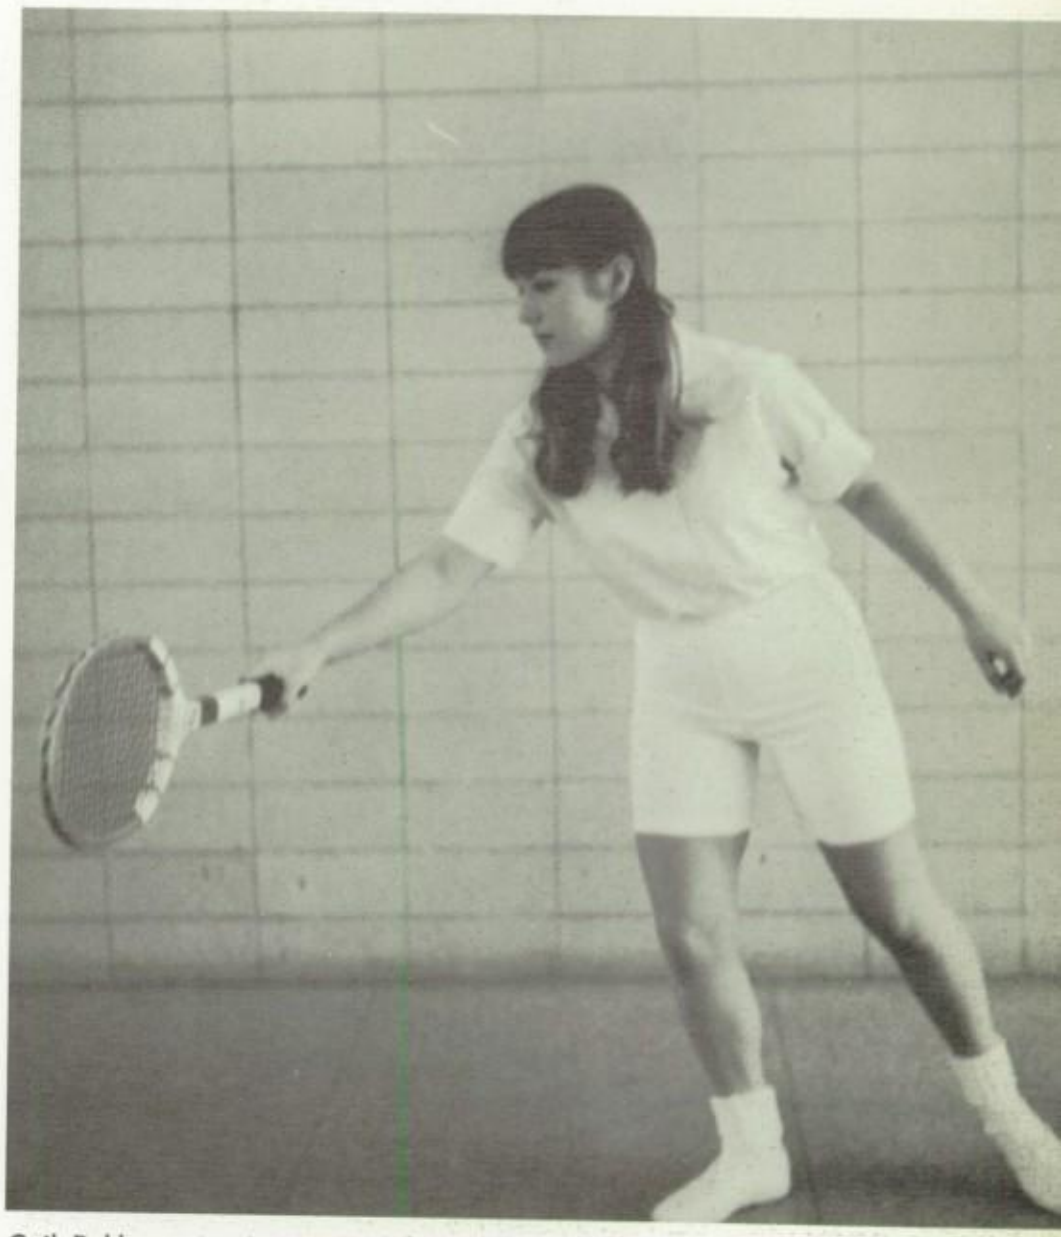
G.A.A. tennis team sets new record

Glenbard's girls tennis team, sponsored by Girls' Athletic Association, won its first meets in the six years that it has been in existence. They beat Willowbrook and Hinsdale South to make their new record.

Tennis team tryouts were held this September for all interested girls. By the skill displayed at tryouts, sixteen girls were chosen to play singles as well as doubles. Team practices were held throughout the weeks with meets on Tuesday and Thursday. The meets were held against seven other schools in this area. Miss Schmidt, girls' physical education teacher, supervised all team practices and matches.

Cindy Parks led the team in first singles. Jane Miller and Ruth Layman played first doubles in the tennis matches.



Gail Dahlgren, tennis team member, practices her return before an important match.

Archery team receives fourth in state

Miss Mitchell, Archery team adviser, records scores for Mary Sorenson, team member.

Glenbard's Girls' Athletic Association sponsored a girls' archery team for the sixth year in a row at East. Tryouts were held in September and from the prospective archers, ten regulars and two alternates were chosen to represent our school in the area.

The team practiced under the direction of Miss Sharon Mitchell twice during the week, and meets were held once a week. Each meet consisted of ten girls from each school shooting arrows from thirty yards and then twenty yards from the target. Due to inclement weather, only two meets were held. The first was with Lyons Township High School students from LaGrange. Glenbard won the meet easily with a nine to one score. They also won their second meet against Hinsdale Central with a score of eight to two. The girls also participated in the Illinois Postal Tournament. Out of thirty-three schools, Glenbard's Archery team received fourth place.

Leadership program trains future P.E. teachers

The Leadership Program at G.E. was designed to teach interested girls the basic fundamentals of physical education instruction. Under the supervision of Miss Schmidt, the program was divided into two sections, the junior and senior leaders.

The junior leaders were picked in their sophomore year by grade averages in physical education, a personal interview, and teacher recommendations. During section, the girls learned how to make lesson plans, to referee games, and how to teach the sport skills and the progression of these skills. They also presented a program, depicting the physical education curriculum at Glenbard, for the Parent's Night in the fall.

The second level of the leadership program consisted of senior girls who passed the junior year. They were allowed to help a physical education teacher and instruct the students in that class. They also taught the junior leaders and planned the Parent's Night program.

Neither rain nor mud stop Marching band

Although hampered by poor weather which marked last fall and which frequently made it impossible for the Glenbard East band to practice or even perform their routines at football games, the band was still able to give the fans at the Rams' games many fine half-time performances. The highlight of these half-time maneuvers was at the Homecoming game when the band played and danced "The Mexican Shuffle."

Eighty-five members of the band are directed by Mr. Jack Crews who is assisted by the president of the band, Bruce Moore, and a council of ten band members.

As in years past, the band sold candy; however, there was a new reason for this project this year. The band purchased blazers with the candy money. They also sponsored a social in March which was for band and orchestra members only.

Toward the end of the year, Mr. Crews and the G.E. band went on a tour in Illinois. They traveled to the 1968 Music Festival which was held at Illinois State University.

G.E. orchestra fills the air with music

The position of orchestra director was adequately filled this year by Mr. Hallman. He directed all of the fifty musicians which constitute Glenbard's orchestra this year. Mr. Hallman came to Glenbard East after having taught at York and Addison Trail, as well as Topeka, Kansas.

Under Mr. Hallman's guidance, the Glenbard East orchestra held three concerts. Their first concert came at Christmas when they not only had a concert for the public but also the following day played for G.E.'s student body at the Christmas convocation. During the Christmas season, an orchestra ensemble was sent to play for the Lombard Lions Club.

In March the symphony orchestra held another concert. The musical selections included pieces from the eighteenth to the twentieth century.

Choirs present Pops concert in the spring

Chorus members, Ken Baker, John Trout, and Jack Duncan practice for the upcoming winter concert.

Under the direction of Mr. Wagner, Glenbard's choral department presented many concerts this year. Their first public performance was the Thanksgiving concert held on November 21. The choir and the choruses also performed in the Christmas concert and student convocations. The choral department finished the school season with two concerts in the spring. The first was the annual Spring concert and the second was the unusual Pops concert.

As well as the traditional three choruses and numerous ensembles, the department had added a concert choir. This is an honor choir formed of specially selected students, who had to audition. The student must have had at least one year in one of the other choruses and must be willing to do his best in rehearsals as well as in concert. The Concert Choir performed very difficult music in addition to singing in foreign languages. They also did arrangements implementing parts of the band and orchestra.

Several of the varsity team members received outstanding awards. Frank Guinti and Tom Corcoran, as offensive backs, Steve Bogdas and Steve Kenny, as linemen, made the Des Plaines Valley League All Star Football Team for 1967. These four varsity players also received honorable mention for the State All Star Team. Tom Corcoran and Steve Bogdas broke two school records in football. In the Morton West game, Tom Corcoran made the most passes in a single game in Glenbard's history. Steve Bogdas completed the most passes in a season in our school's history.

J.V. football takes second in conference

Glenbard East's fighting Junior Varsity ended with a 6-1 record, good enough for second place in the Des Plaines Valley Conference. A strong defense coupled with an ability to strike early on offense proved to be a potent formula for success. They look with pride to major contributions made by members of the junior varsity squad who moved up to varsity during the season and became key members of that squad.

Preserving the Junior Varsity tradition of all home victories which goes back several years, their only defeat was to Morton West on their field. Morton West was also the only team which scored against them in the first half.

One of the highlights of the season was the defeat of a strong Wheaton Central team, 21-6.

With experienced veterans returning from Varsity play, coupled with a successful J.V. season, the juniors look forward hopefully to the 1968 season.

Tackle, Rick Huckstadt, kicks an extra point towards another victory.

Sophomores rate first place honors

Glenbard's sophomore football squad had an outstanding season this fall. Their season record of seven wins and one tie earned the team first place in the sophomore division of the Des Plaines Valley League Conference.

During the eight games which the team played, their opponents only compiled twenty points compared to two hundred fourteen points which the sophomore Rams racked up. The squad's finest performance was in a game against East Leyden. In that match, the sophomores scored forty-five points while East Leyden could not score any.

Harriers experience building year

As the Glenbard East Cross-Country Team for the 1967-68 season was comprised entirely of juniors, it was a building year. Pete Lagocki was the only player who had competed at the varsity level last year, while the rest of the team had had no previous varsity experience.

The varsity team had a fair season, ending the year with a 5-2 record. The only losses the team suffered were to Willowbrook who took first place in the league and to Addison Trail who took second.

The Cross Country Team also placed fairly well at their invitationals placing 7th out of 13 schools. At the Tinley Park Invitational they received first place trophy and 4th place at the Willowbrook Invitational.

On the twenty-first of October the League Meet was held. At this meet Glenbard East took 3rd place. In the individual standings at the meet Alan Gold placed 6th and Pete Lagocki placed 11th.

Soph Cross-Country takes second in conference

Although this year's sophomore Cross Country team started out the 1967 season by losing to Glenbard West, they proceeded to bury this defeat by winning four of their next five meets. While they lost only to York, they beat West Leyden, Downers Grove South, Morton West and East Leyden. During this time, they also competed in two invitationals. At the Proviso West Invitational, the sophomores placed second out of thirteen teams, and thirteenth at the York Invitational.

The biggest defeat of the year for the sophomore team came when they lost to Willowbrook, the team that went on to win the Des Plaines Valley championship. They finished the season by beating Hinsdale South and Addison Trail and by taking first place in the Tinley Park Invitational.

At the Cross Country League Meet, Glenbard's sophomores took second place.

In terms of individual results, Jeff Long took second, Bill Smith sixth, Larry Ingrassia seventh, Rick Weinhandel eighth, John Montecino ninth, and John Stoeckel seventeenth.

Totaling a seasonal record of 529 points, high scorer, Randy Mateling, combined with the support and fine achievements of his teammates, had no trouble capturing the championship of the Des Plaines Valley League for the 1967-68 season. They were undefeated in conference play with a 14-0 record and of their non-conference games GE varsity rams lost only once in a close contest against Naperville.

At the Carbondale Tournament, Glenbard beat their first two opponents Harrisburg and Decatur Eisenhower; however, they were beaten by Alton and DuQuion to place 4th among 16 of the better teams in the state.

The team's only other loss came at the regional tournament where GE, after winning from Wheaton Academy and Willowbrook, lost to Glenbard West, giving the varsity team a season record of 21-4.

Letterman for this year were Mark Smith, Bob Kretz, Tom Corcoran, Jim Mraz, Roger Hager, Howie Feddema, Randy Mateling, and Mike Kennedy. Randy Mateling and Rich Bernhardt were also named all conference players and Tom Corcoran was all-conference honorable mention.

J. V. follows example of Varsity and wins

Following the example set by the varsity Rams, Coach Jack Bruckbauer's junior varsity basketball squad fought their way to undisputed championship in the Des Plaines Valley League. Led by the ballhandling of Chuck LaFleur and Scott Jensen, the scoring and rebounding of Jim Kulbeda and Rich Urbanick, the net shooting of Jerry McNair and the all round versatility of Wally Schultz, the J.V. team ended the season with 13 wins and one loss. The team's only loss came in the last second of the game against West Leyden who in their previous encounter had been badly beaten by the juniors.

Jim Kulbeda was leading scorer for the season totaling 228 points. He also led the team in offensive and defensive rebounds. Chuck LaFleur led the assists with a final record of 67. These players were backed up by the fine performance of Pete Lagocki, Doug McGown, and Mark Maxwell. The rest of the JV team was composed of John Richi, Rich Virgilio, and Bob Yelton who combined with their fellow teammates to form a highly talented team which represented the qualities of good sportsmanship and team play.

Grapplers hindered by many injuries

Varsity wrestling team finished with a conference record of five wins and seven losses. Mr. Adam Holtz was the new varsity grapplers coach.

Art Malm, who wrestled 180, Bruce Moore at 103, Chuck DuBose at 165, and Tom Gambino, heavyweight, were the only seniors on the team. The shortage of returning lettermen along with the injuries the boys received during the season, hindered the team to a great degree.

Two of the Ram's outstanding meets were the St. Francis meet 35-9, and later the Hinsdale South meet 42-8.

Junior, Dick Sanderson, at 133 finished with one of the best individual records with thirteen wins and two losses. Dick's freshman brother, Jim, at 95 also had a good record with 11 wins and 5 losses. Senior, Chuck DuBose, at 165, was elected team captain and "most valuable wrestler" by his fellow teammates. Individual honors were received by Don Hoshaw and Chuck DuBose for their performance at the district tournaments. Both boys received third places.

Intramurals provide extra physical activity

Intramural membership was opened to any boy enrolled in a regular physical education program at Glenbard East. The intramural program offered a wide variety of sports to include the interests of all boys.

This year's sports included basketball, football, track, tennis, ping-pong, chess, archery, golf, bowling, gymnastics, wrestling, and softball. Teams were organized according to gym classes. The boy's physical education teachers set up meets and games after school between classes.

Each sport had a maximum and minimum point value. A team received the minimum points just for playing even if they lost. If they won, however, they received the maximum number of points.

All students were organized competitively with stress on student participation and leadership. This program offered light and strenuous exercise and team and individual sports to meet present interests and future needs.

Cheerleaders promote good sportsmanship

Glenbard East's twelve Cheerleaders supported their Rams through a very productive year of athletics, and other school activities. With the help of Pep Club the Cheerleaders promoted good sportsmanship and boosted school spirit.

The Cheerleaders cheered Glenbard East's teams on to victory, kept the spirit going during those tense moments. This year the squad tried to add variety to the regular season of football and basketball by attending Gymnastic, Track and Wrestling meets, concerts, plays and different club meetings.

Recognizing their part in leading and setting examples the girls practiced many long hours perfecting cheers and motions under the expert eye of their adviser, Miss Ruhlow. Both Sue Gerhardt and Linda Scheben aided the squad by managing to co-ordinate all their school activities.

Although the twelve girls were divided into two squads, Varsity and Junior Varsity, they all believed and worked toward the same goals. The squad not only promoted good sportsmanship, but tried to inspire school spirit.

Varsity cheerleaders: Judy Larm, Gayle Cunningham, Diane Parrish, Daryl Beier, Kathy Novak, and Peggy Crawford.

Pom Pon girls perform original routines

A large part of Glenbard's cheering section at basketball and football games is comprised of a group of dedicated upperclassmen. During the half-time and before each varsity game, the Pom Pon squad performs an original routine composed by the girls themselves. This year's squad consisted of twenty regulars and three alternates, all seniors with the exception of two juniors.

Noreen Cox and Ginger Lietz, the squad's 67-68 co-captains, organized a number of socials and cookie sales to raise money to pay for their uniforms. Mrs. Nancy Graham, the club's adviser, along with Maury Siebs, the club's manager, helped the girls through a difficult year of changes in the squad. The hard work of the entire club made the second year's squad the best in the conference.

SCHOOL LIFE

G.E. presents smashing musical, "How to Succeed . . ."

In April, the Glenbard East Drama department presented the musical comedy, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying". The musical was about a young man, J. Pierpont Finch (Rick Aseltine), who tries to make something of himself by following a book entitled How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying. After falling in love with his secretary (Joyce Smith), he finally advances from mail room clerk to chairman of the board.

The most difficult part of the production was fitting the choreography with the music. The dancing had to be sped up to keep in time with the songs.

This show was the most expensive of all shows ever presented at G.E. Every afternoon students could be seen making sky-lines or working on a pirate ship.

For all their fine work, the students received a full house every night that the show ran with a standing ovation on three nights.

J. Pierpont Finch (Rick Aseltine) watches J. B. Biggley (Bob Aseltine) carefully as together they sing "Grand Old Ivy".

Womper (Keith Miller), Finch and Miss Jones (Debbie Daniel) lead the office staff in the "Brotherhood of Man".

Finch reveals his plan to the form of Hedy LaRue (Sara Morrison) for the World Wide Wickets' advertising campaign.

Tom Harmon as Mr. Twimble, the head mail clerk, tells Finch about "The Company Way".

J. B. Biggley announces the arrival of Ovington (Mike Law) at the promotional party in the rooftop gardens.

Coming and going, Prom-goers Carol Wolff, Marc Miller, Debbie Haight, Steve Novy, Kris Benson and Jerry Guerra enjoy themselves on G.E.'s swingin' showboat.

Juniors transform gym into Showboat

Saturday evening, June 3rd, 1967, the showboat docked at Glenbard East for one of the most exciting Junior-Senior Proms. Members of the junior class worked especially hard to transform the gym into a classical showboat. Decorations and refreshments as well as the after-the-prom party were utmost in their minds.

Queen, Barb Van Ness and King, Bob Heller, reigned over the prom with the princesses Suzy Beavers, Rose Bellock, Sue Darg and Edrie Wawrzonek and the princes, Sam Bass, Don Finnie, Marty Olsen and Dominic Pulice. The evening's music was provided by the King Jaros Band with special entertainment by a quartet of Glenbard East Seniors, Bob Aseltine, Sam Bass, Dave Vaile and Robert Spilker.

The after-the-prom party was held at The Spinning Wheel. At the party, prom-goers were served a country fried chicken dinner and danced to the pop group, The Karacters, before returning home in the early Sunday morning hours.

After the coronation, crownbearer, Lario Belcastro and flowergirl, Lisa Fallon, smile brightly for the photographer.

Senior class presents landscaping funds

On Thursday night, June 15, 1967 five hundred twenty-nine seniors completed their high school education by receiving their diplomas. For these students, four years of work and fun came to an end in Glenbard's gymnasium, but a new world of exciting opportunities opened.

Bob Heller, senior class president, led the graduates into the gymnasium and then gave the welcome speech. Sara Morrison, salutatorian and Shirley Fritz, class valedictorian talked to the class and the audience on the values of education. Rod Dobles, AFS student to Glenbard, spoke to the class thanking them for his year at our school and invited them to visit him at his home in Costa Rica. Suzy Beavers presented the class memorial of a check for landscaping the senior lawn to Mr. Adams, a member of the Board of Education. The graduates were then presented. After the formal ceremony, a reception in the cafeteria was given to scholarship recipients and their friends by the National Honor Society.

Sara Morrison, salutatorian, after being presented by Mrs. Marshall, steps to the podium to address her graduating class in a practice session.

Relatives and friends turn to watch the procession of the proud members of Glenbard East's graduating class of 1967.

Witch trials come to Glenbard East

Last November, the Drama Department presented Arthur Miller's "The Crucible". The story was based on the New Salem witch trials. Cast members labored over the actual accounts of the trials and feelings of the characters they were to portray.

The curtains opened to a small colonial home. Here people were accused of being witches who have cursed a group of young girls. By the end of the play almost half of the town had been accused and persecuted. Included was John Proctor (Jack Berghorst) who refused to admit to the accusation and was hanged as his wife watched. Instigator of this plot was Abigail Williams who was jealous of Elizabeth, John's wife.

The scenery was simple but well done. All the furniture used was hand made by the crew.

The play was directed by Mrs. Margaret Meyer.

Abigail Williams (Bonnie Wnenkowski) shakes her cousin, Betty Paris (Barbara Virgilio), to rid her of the devil's spirit while Mercy Lewis (Deidra Gluskin) looks on.

Governor Danforth (Terry McKnight) urges John Proctor (Jack Berghorst) to sign his confession in the last scene of the play.

Elizabeth Proctor (Denise Domke) looks on as her husband, John, is being hanged at the gallows.

John Proctor (Jack Berghorst) tries to persuade Mary Warren (Marcia Rittmueller) to inform the judges (Mike Jurgenson and Terry McKnight) of the fraud to convict him of being in league with the devil.

Gods of Olympus descend on Homecoming events

The Gods of Olympus descended on Glenbard this year bringing good luck and success to all of the 1967 Homecoming Activities.

Each day of Homecoming Week was represented by one of the four classes. On their designated day the students wore red, black and white.

On Friday night, October 13, the traditional bonfire, pep rally, and social were held. The cheerleaders and team paraded a hornet, the mascot of Hinsdale South, around the bonfire and then threw it on the "funeral pyre."

Homecoming court was Peggy Crawford, Queen, Mary Lynn Munizza, senior representative, Gloria Harris, junior representative, Sue Albanese, sophomore representative and Jody Burt, freshman representative.

The alumni breakfast was held in the faculty cafeteria. Most of the clubs and organizations of Glenbard were represented in the parade. The floats, which were based on the theme of Mythology, were judged before the parade. The Junior Class float "Rams to Heaven, Hornets to Hades" received first place, the Sophomore Class, second place and the Senior Class, third place.

After the Homecoming Parade, the spirited Rams beat Hinsdale with a score of 33 to 21. The Marching Band also presented their "Tijuana Brass" halftime show.

The last event of Homecoming weekend was the semi-formal dance, "Twilight of the Gods". It was held in the cafeteria which was decorated with murals of mythological characters.

Homecoming Queen, Peggy Crawford, smiles happily as she rides in the Homecoming Parade.

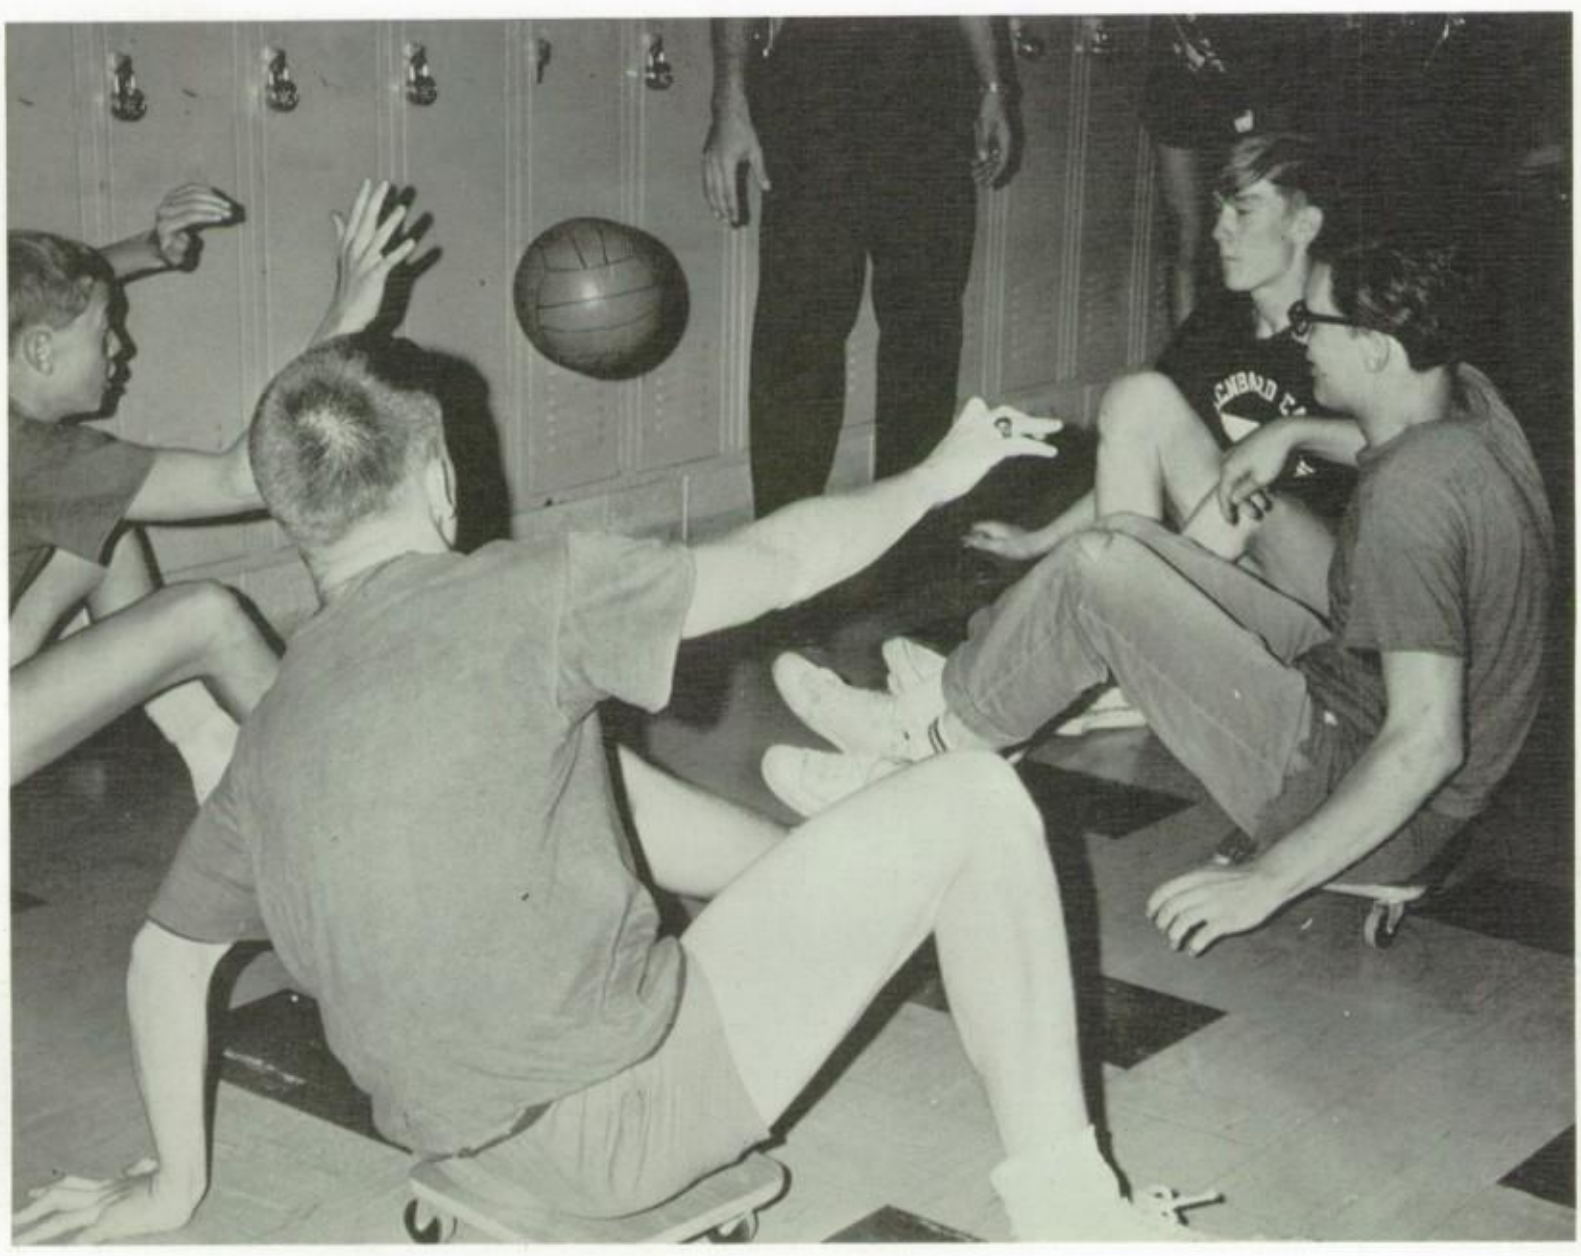
In P.E. class, junior boys, Larry Johnson, Rich Pestien, Guy Munson, and Bryan Carson play in the hall with the scooters and a basketball.



Members of the Varsity wrestling team watch in apprehension as a teammate grapples on the mat.

School life includes routine and excitement

Homecoming, Junior-Senior Prom, school drama productions, and graduation are main focal points of Glenbard's students traditional school life. However, school life also consists of the everyday routine of walking to classes and lockers. Working in clubs and participating in sports make up a sizable portion of a student's time. Activities in physical education classes as well as interesting classroom discussions are part of a student's life at Glenbard East, too.

The Glenbard East Pom-pon Squad rehearse their routine on the football field before the game.

This year, Glenbard East has added two new countries to the list of countries having been represented at GE. Per-Uno Malmstrom and Yuriko Yamada, East's AFS students for 1967-68 school year, arrived in Lombard late in August from Chile and Sweden.

During the year Yuri, as nicknamed by her friends, lived with Laurie Polka and Linda Rafftery. Along with her studies Yuri actively participated in student council, AFS and other school activities. Hot dogs, coke, football games, basketball games and school dances have helped her to see how American youth live.

GE's other foreign exchange student Per-Uno Malmstrom also has been investigating American customs with his American brother, Terry Neuert. Per, excelling in U. S. History has learned about the basis of U. S. democracy and the fundamentals of American business.

Semifinalists in AFS for GE for the summer year were Mariejane Houlihan and Phil Walker. They competed with students from all over the country for a summer home in a foreign country.

Biester becomes port for "Mr. Roberts"

On February 9 and 10, a U.S. Navy cargo ship docked in Biester Auditorium as Glenbard East's Drama Department presented "Mr. Roberts", a play written by Thomas Heggan, and Joshua Logan. The plot deals with cargo officer, Mr. Roberts (Terry McKnight), who wants to fight in war and who was a friend to all his shipmates.

A live goat was brought to school every day by Shelia Foster, who took care of him while "he" was part of the cast. Much to everyone's surprise he turned out to be a she who was expecting a family addition at any time. Each day cast and crew held their breath for fear motherhood would arrive before the play could be delivered to the audience in Biester.

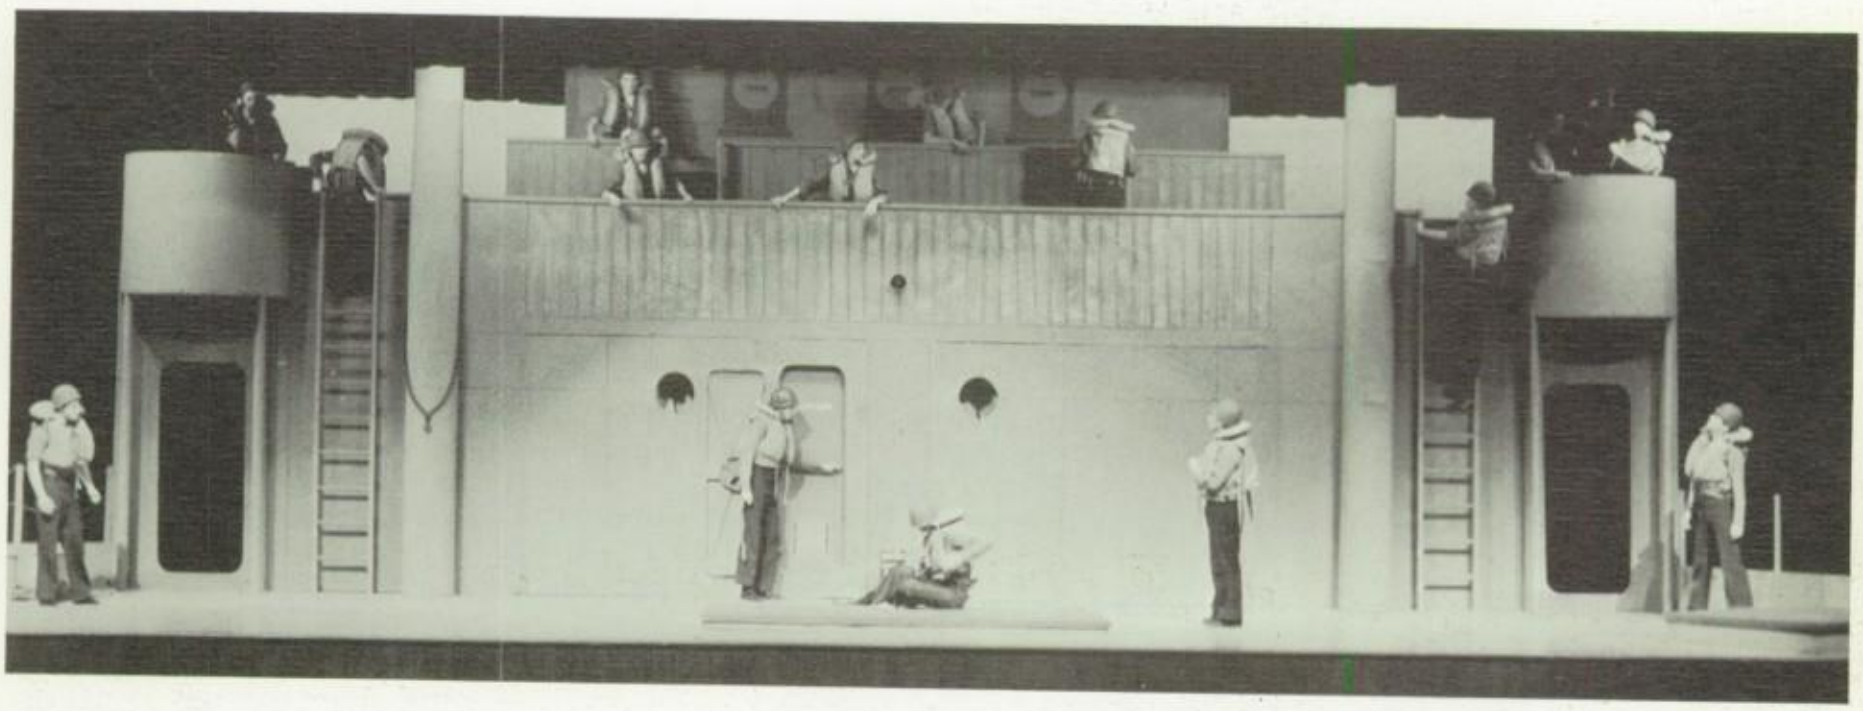
Costume committee members got the uniforms from the Great Lakes Naval Center. It was a startling experience to see high school students in wide legged trousers which were the style during the war years. Members of the scenery crew worked hard to make two rooms, the captain's office and Mr. Roberts' room, move on pulleys from one part of the ship.

Mr. Roberts (Terry McKnight) smiles with deep satisfaction as he yanks the captain's hated palm tree out by the roots.

Ensign Pulver (Rick Aseltine) and Mr. Roberts (Terry McKnight) wait patiently while Doc (Phil Hay) pours the coveted liquor out for them.

The Captain (Jack Berghorst) shouts a threatening reminder to Mr. Roberts (Terry McKnight) before slamming his cabin door.

"Man your battle stations!" is heard as the crew scrambles to their places on deck.



The crew excitedly strains to see a beautiful girl sighted on a nearby island taking a shower.

Gail Olsen thoughtfully contemplates college material in the Guidance Office as she plans her future.

Seniors fill year with work, fun, and honors

Fourth year Glenbard students proved this year that the senior class chant "sixty-eight is great" was true in many more ways than one.

The seniors started out the year by showing their tremendous school spirit with their third place Homecoming float.

While the Varsity football team placed third in conference, the basketball team retained the conference championship for the second year in a row. Varsity gymnasts placed second in the league.

Senior honors went to Ruth Wright and Mike Christianson, both National Merit Scholarship Semi-Finalists. Mike also received Third Honorable Mention from the American Chemical Company. Senior Judy Larm received the D.A.R. award this year.

During spring vacation, members of the Class of '68 went on Glenbard's Senior Trip to Washington D.C. and New York for a five day tour. The Class of '68 was also the first class to use the Senior Lawn.

With graduation, 600 seniors leave the senior class in the capable hands of the class of 1969.

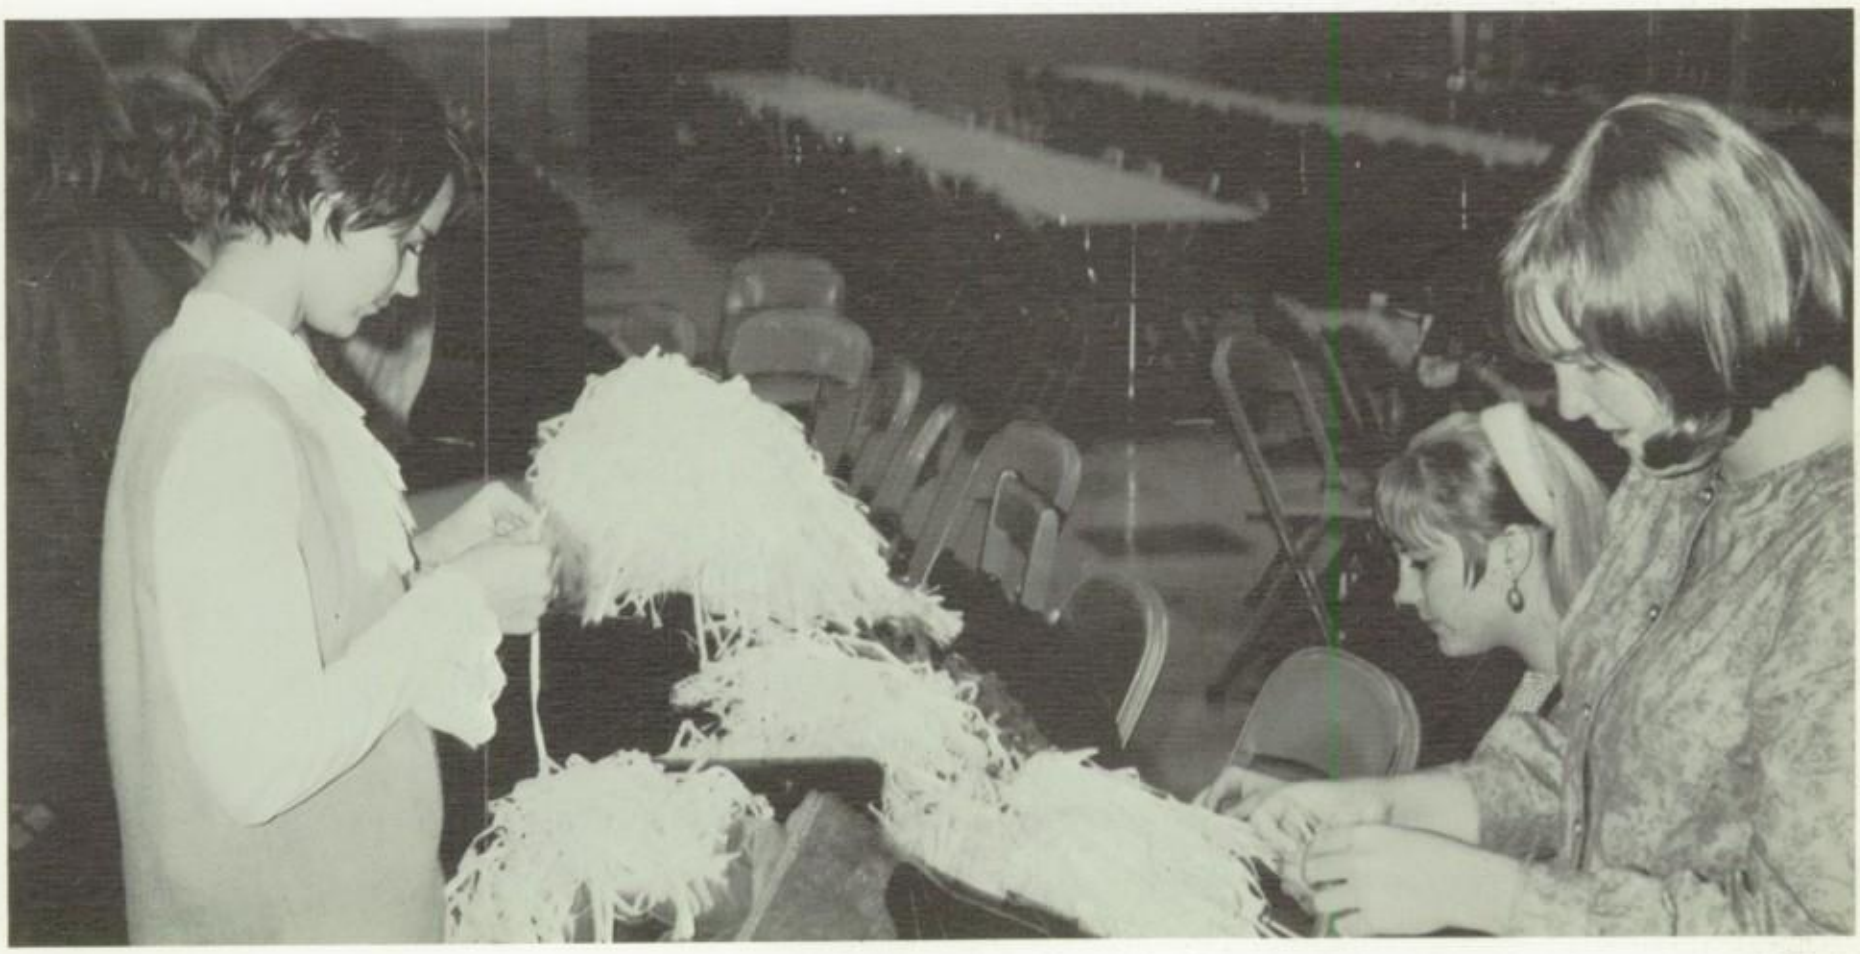
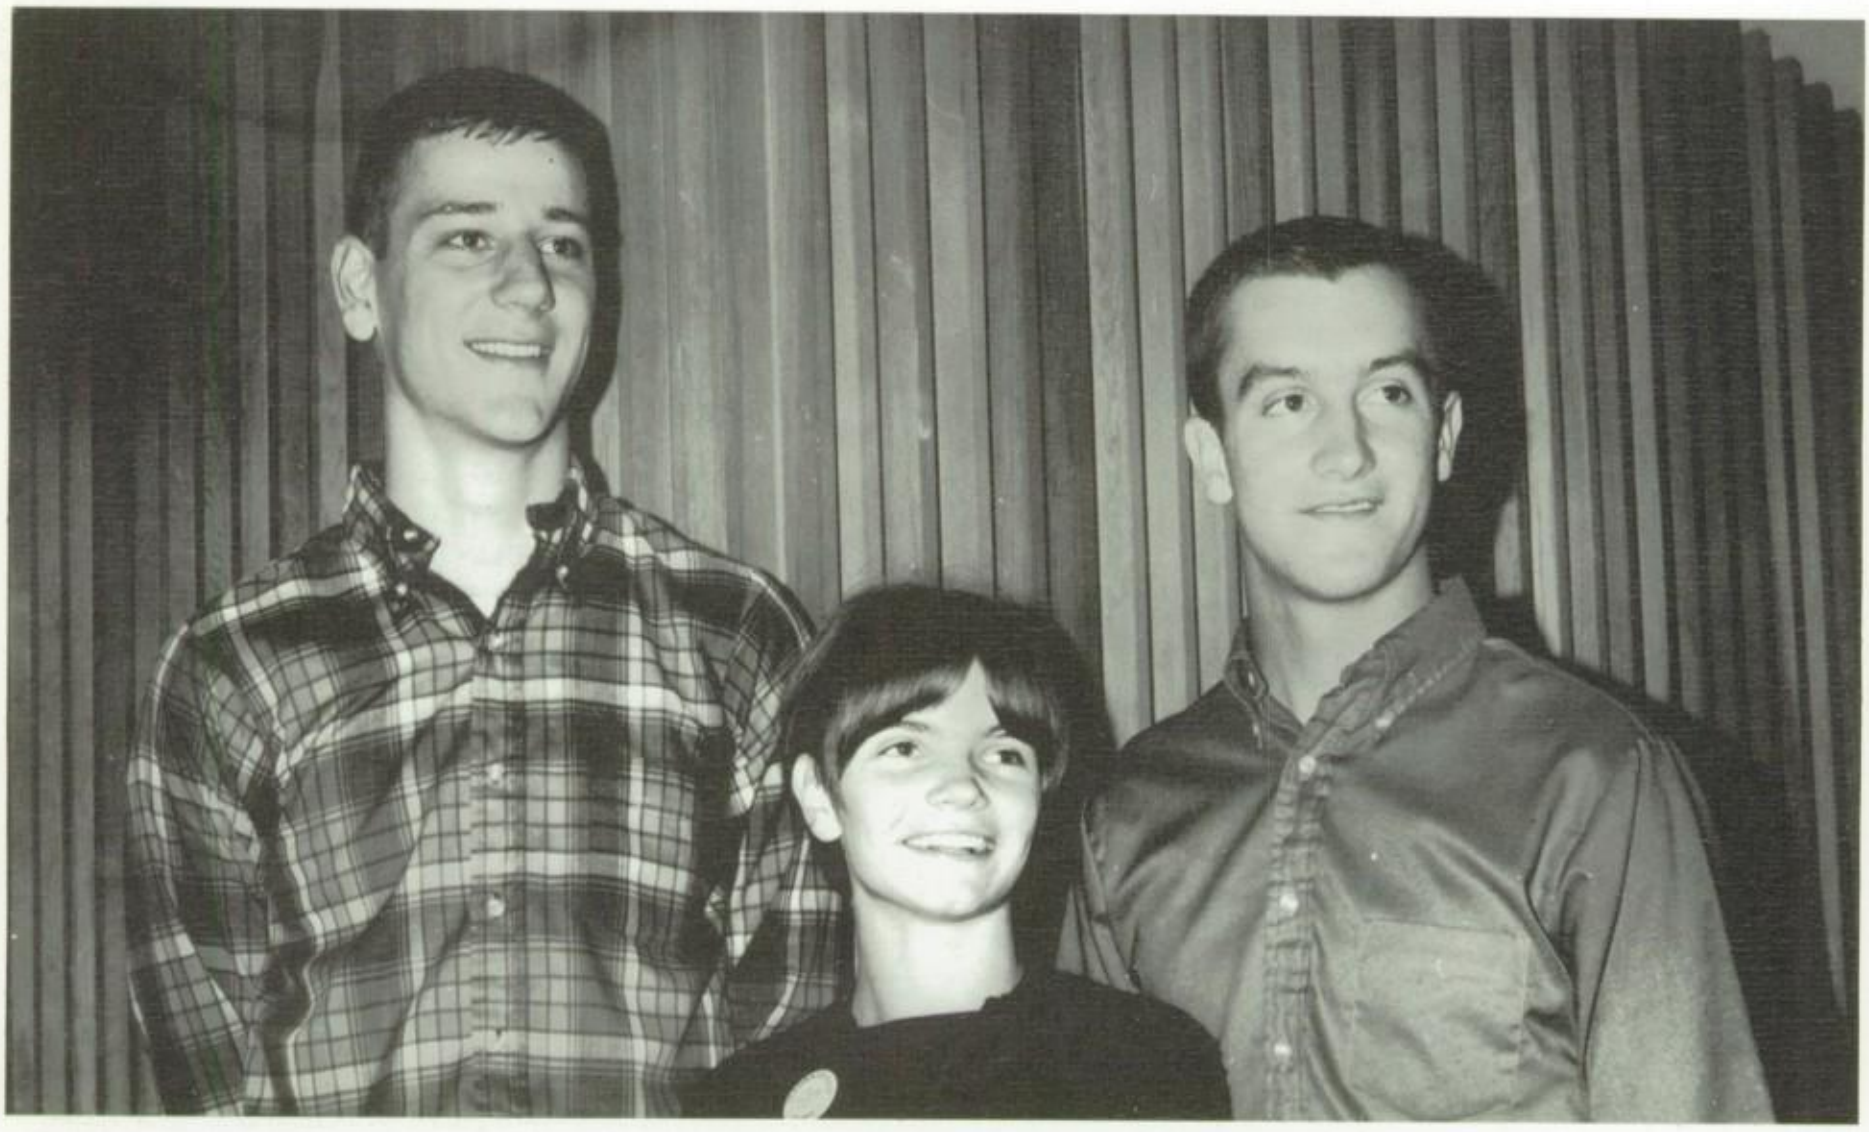
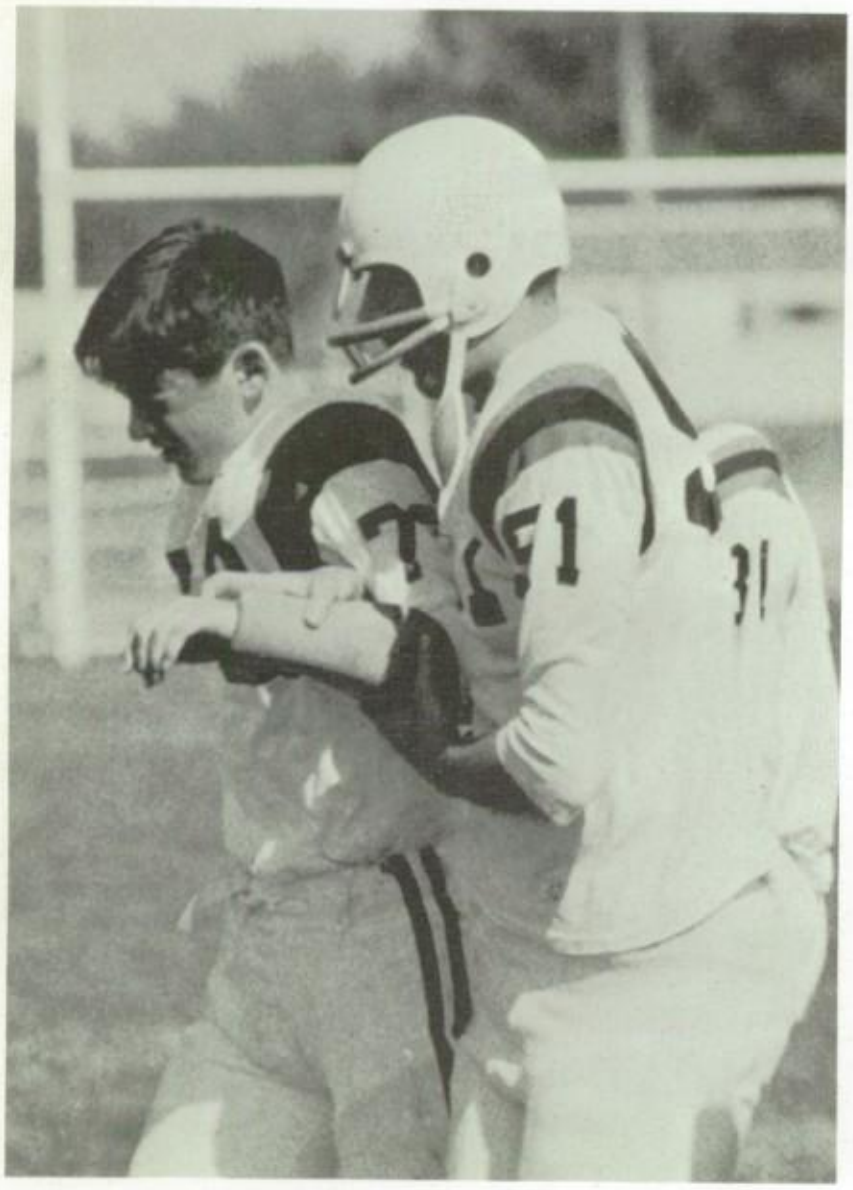
Jackie O'Malley and Debbie Danker help prepare pom-pon shakers to sell at football games at a general Tri-S-Teens meeting in early fall.





Junior class officers, Roger Hager, president, Doug McGown, vice-president, and Nancy Kirchner, secretary-treasurer, efficiently led the junior class in 1967-68.

Teammates help Greg Thompson off the field after an injury.



During the past school year Glenbard East juniors have proven many times that right attitudes mean success. Under the leadership of Roger Hager, president, Doug McGown, vice-president, and Nancy Kirchner, secretary-treasurer, the class of '69 approached each problem with confidence and enthusiasm.

The RAMS attitude was shown in the production of the junior class float for Homecoming which placed first in the parade competition. Responsibility was exhibited by many juniors who were officers and members of various clubs at Glenbard. Several juniors spent this year in training to take over the leadership of the new organizations at the Glenbard North campus next year. Classroom work also reflected the achievement with many juniors receiving such high scholastic awards as the Steven Galatti Memorial Scholarship, set up to sponsor a junior in Germany for a year, and National Honor Society membership. The biggest project for the class of '69 was the annual Junior-Senior Prom which was a total success in every way. By doing the best possible in all they did, the junior class showed that they will make one of the finest senior classes at Glenbard.

Juniors excel at individual sports.

Head coach Ron O'Brien beams his usual confident smile as his running Rams romp over Hinsdale South in a cross country dual meet.

Class officers Dan Smith, Judy Zelesk, Chris Letzter devote full attention to sophomores.

Glenbard East's sophomore class spent the school year proving their capabilities in every avenue of school life—sports, academics, and clubs. With president Dan Smith, vice-president, Kris Letzter and secretary-treasurer, Judy Zelazek the class of '70 made itself an important part of Glenbard East.

The sophomore class work started with the Homecoming float in October. They placed 2nd in the float competition with their Trojan Ram.

Sophomores developed fine athletic teams this year by practicing hard and playing the best they could and racking up a good scoring record in all sports.

A week was set aside to honor the sophomore class in the spring. It is hoped this will become a tradition at Glenbard East.

As upperclassmen next year the sophomores should continue the tradition of success that they set this year and continue to accept portions of leadership and responsibility.

In Memoriam

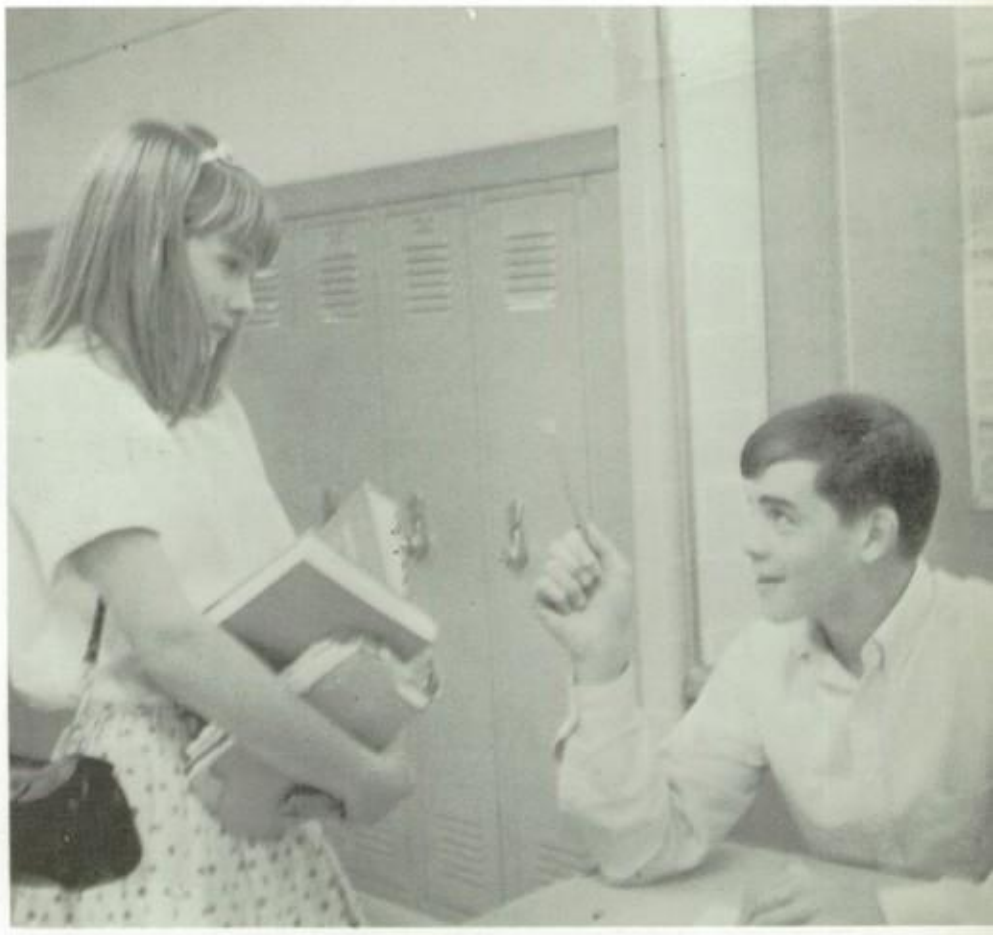
Warren Inwood

June 30, 1952—November 2, 1967

In September, the doors of Glenbard opened wide to admit the largest freshman class ever. As the newness of being freshmen wore off, the nine hundred ninety-two students were determined to set new and exciting records.

The Class of '71 started off the year with the freshman social. Sponsored by Student Council, the dance offered a chance for freshmen to get acquainted. The freshmen also worked together to make the freshman float for the Homecoming parade. Members of the Class of '71 showed great school spirit by piling up an impressive attendance record at football and basketball games. Freshmen displayed interest in classwork with many students making the Honor Roll.

With the achievements offered by freshmen, they proved that they will be an asset to Glenbard for the next three years.



Freshman, Debbie Reynolds, stops for monitor Tom Mitter to sign her pass on the way to class.

WHAT'S YOUR NEXT STOP?

Whether you're headed for college, marriage or straight into business, one thing is certain: you'll soon begin to appreciate the need for financial security. Ask Dad about the importance of life insurance—something you'll wish you had when the time comes to raise a family. I'd like to show you both why now's the perfect time to start building an insurance program—while you're young and premiums are lower. Have Dad phone me for an appointment.

Save For Linda

June 11, 1968

Dear George, (To the guy I love)

Babe, it's so hard to know where to begin, there's so many things I want to say. For one thing it's been so wonderful going steady with you for (ya 7 months) so far. You've made my ~~Top~~ Junior & Senior year a very happy one indeed. I've always dreamed of having a boyfriend like you to love, comfort, and be with me when I'm low or hurt. You've been all these things to me and many more.

You've given me so many nice gifts and wonderful memories that I'll always cherish forever. The proms and formal dances you have taken me to where such a wonderful time that filled me with happiness & made me so very proud to be going with a guy like you. You sure did look handsome all those times. I hope you don't think all of this is too mussy. But I never get to write these things to you and this is the approriate time.

Please, forgive me for all the bad times I've given you. I really don't mean too. It just seems to happen that way. I do hope you believe me and try to understand that I think I'm doing the right thing at that time and then later I do know I did the wrong thing. I'm just afraid I might lose you but as I realize now that was wrong cause this way I really might lose you by being the way I am at times. I'm glad you've given me so many chances or I wouldn't be writing in your yearbook now, probably. I sure hope you don't regret giving me those chances. I feel you don't at times and then other times I feel you do. I hope this feeling isn't very often.

We, have had some many great times together I hope many, many more in the future years

I'm so proud + happy that you will be going to College (Elmhurst). You deserve the good things out of life.
Remember all our parking spots, the times at your house, the parties, Sugar + Spice, H_3O, the dances, the lakes, the proms, birthdays, B---e and many other good times we have shared.
Well, Babe we are through with school now and graduation will be soon. I sure hope things will work out for us in the future cause it will be fun!! I would love to have a little red-headed baby. (How about it?) That is if we get married. (Don't laugh) It is possible) you know.
Well, Babe I guess I'll close for now.
Just remember George I'll always love you.
Love Always,
Linda
